

Thinking of becoming an Australian citizen?

Building our future together ...

Why study with the ACL Consortium?

Since 2001, more than 10,000 participants from the ACL Consortium have successfully completed the DIAC citizenship course 'Let's Participate'. This course has supported many people on their journey towards citizenship. The course involves 30 hours of study. Every student participant receives a workbook and will be placed into class according to their level of English.

They will be taught by an experienced teacher and may progress through the workbook using computer assisted CDs / DVDs. A visit may be arranged to local Parliament or Council and there will be an end-of-course graduation ceremony to celebrate successful completion.

What will you learn?

You will learn about:

- An introduction to Australian Citizenship
- Australia and its people
- The Democratic Government in Australia
- Your Rights Responsibilities and Privileges when you become a citizen
- Law and Democracy in Australia
- Becoming an Australian citizen.

Who can study the course?

Anyone who is not currently an Australian citizen, but would like to become one in the future.

Where can you study the course?

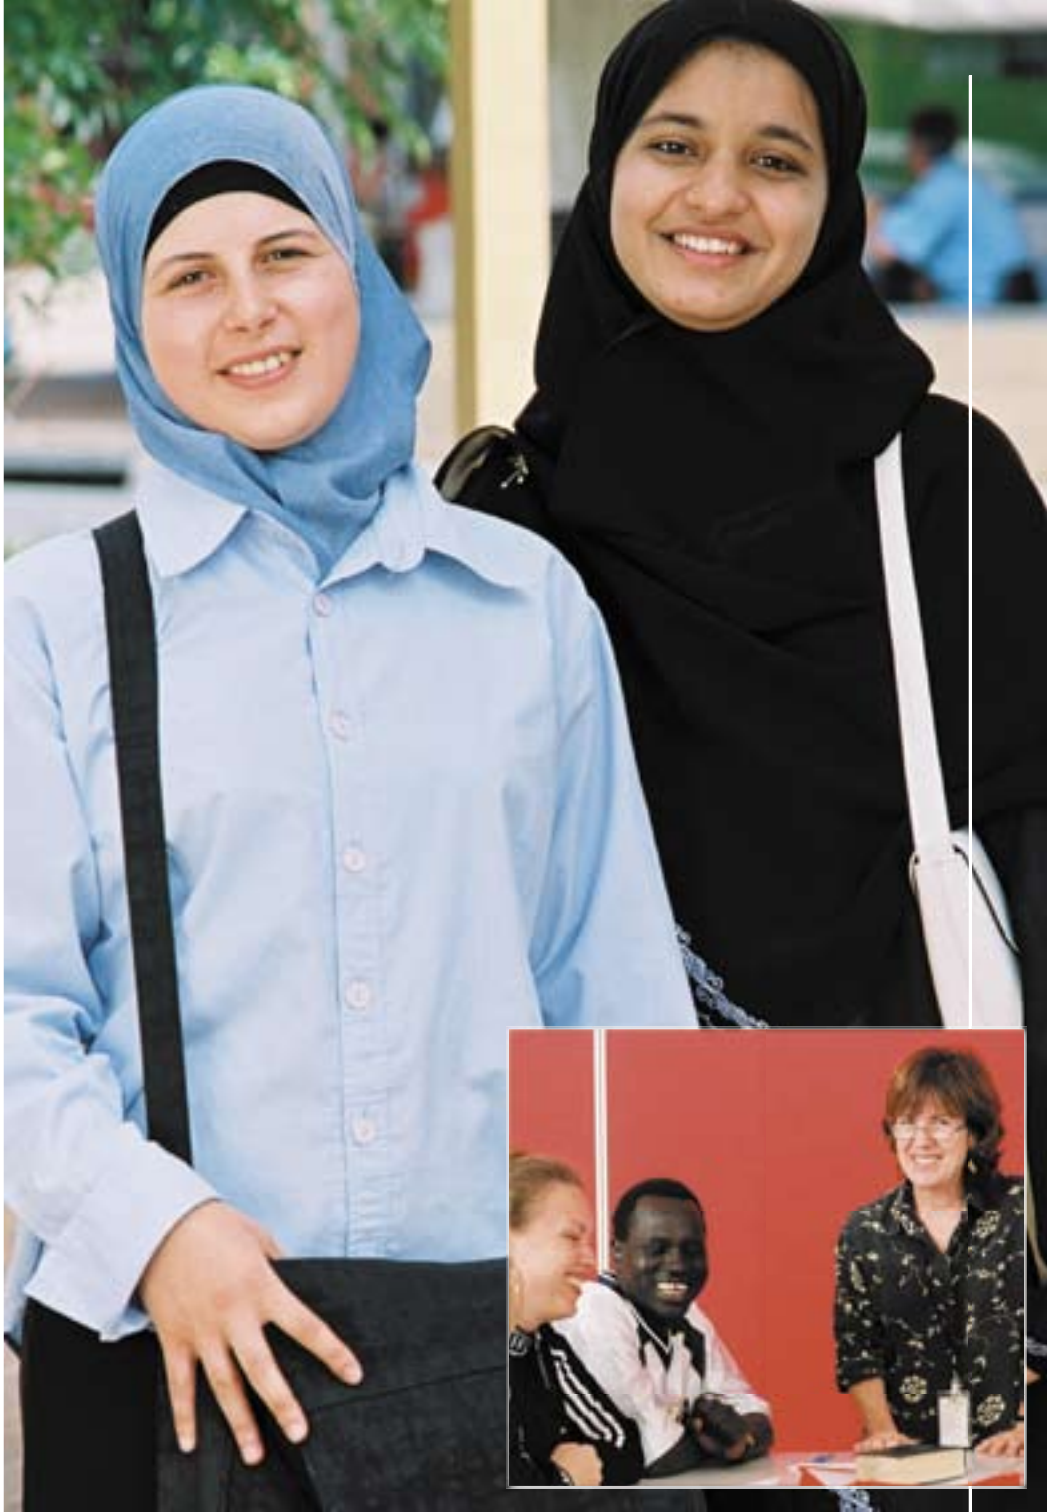

With more than 90 courses run each year by the ACL Consortium, you have the choice of studying at Auburn, Parramatta, Blacktown, Ermington, Cabramatta, Fairfield, Liverpool or Campbelltown.

All courses are delivered face to face or can be learnt at home as part of the Distance Learning Program. Bilingual classes are available at some Colleges in the Consortium.

How much will it cost?

If you are AMEP eligible, you will be able to use some of your 510 hours. Others can participate for a fee of $250.
